INSURANCE COVERAGE TIPS

Before A Storm:

Read your policy declaration page to understand your coverage and deductible for the building, contents, and other coverages.

Take photos or videos of your home's complete exterior and interior before a storm event. When taking interior photos, make sure you photograph all furniture. Also, photograph inside drawers in case you need to itemize specific contents in the event of a claim where contents are damaged or are no longer present.

If your insurance policy includes a warranty that hurricane shutters must be in place in a storm, make sure you take action to put the shutters in place before a storm event. Photograph your home showing the shutters.

If you evacuate, bring the policies for your home, vehicle, boat, etc., and agent contact info.

After a Storm:

Contact your agent or carrier within 48 hours after a storm event to notify them if you have damage to your home that exceeds the windstorm deductible.

Take photos and videos of damage to your home after the storm to document the damage. Reasonable Emergency Measures – ($3,000 or 1% of Coverage A) Reasonable costs incurred to protect your home from further damage are usually an additional coverage included in your policy – so look through your policy and find this additional coverage and how it works so you understand how to proceed.

The carrier (adjuster) must be allowed to inspect the damage to your home and approve further damage repairs before damages exceeding reasonable emergency measures are approved by the carrier.

AVOIDING SCAMS AFTER A HURRICANE

BE AS SHREWD AS SNAKES AND AS INNOCENT AS DOVES.

Unfortunately, there are a lot of bad actors that try to take advantage of individuals after a storm. These people and companies can attempt to scam you out of money with promises to repair your home, remove debris, fix your yard, etc. With some help, you can spot these scams before they happen.

Here's a checklist for avoiding construction scams:

- Don't rush: Don't rush into making a decision without doing your research. Take your time and carefully evaluate a contractor before making a choice. A typical scam attempts to "rush" you into a decision. This is a big red flag.
- Know who you are contracting with. This seems obvious but is very easy to miss! Get the person or company's name, number, and contact info. Take pictures of license plates and equipment they use (trailers, trucks, etc.). Be extra vigilant if the person or company is not local.
- Get a written contract/estimate/proposal! Ensure you have a written contract that includes a detailed scope of work, payment schedule, timeline, and materials to be used. Avoid any verbal agreements.
- Verify the contractor's license: Make sure the contractor you're considering has a valid license issued by the state of Florida. You can check the license status online through the Florida Department of Business and Professional Regulation (DBPR).
- Check for insurance: Make sure the contractor has general liability insurance and workers' compensation insurance to protect you in case of any accidents on your property. Insist on these being emailed or hard copies given to you before work begins.
- Avoid upfront payments: Don't pay the full amount upfront. Instead, set up a payment schedule that aligns with the completion of various stages of the project. If the project is larger, then consider a 10% deposit. If it is small, a 50% deposit may be more appropriate. Never pay more than 50% until the job is complete and you are happy with the work.
- Get multiple bids if possible: Get bids from at least three different contractors and compare their prices, scope of work, and references.
- Trust your gut: Finally, trust your gut instinct. If something seems too good to be true or you feel uneasy about a contractor, it's better to err on the side of caution and choose someone else. If you are uneasy or a deal turns bad, contact your local law enforcement. They are happy to assist you with contractor issues on the spot before you pay!
